Nathan Hopkins: Sacriston Enterprise Workshops was put together with a group of social enterprises and charities that wanted to come together to redevelop this old Co-operative site, with the intention that we redevelop it and make it a resource for the community where they can access the services that we provide, but also that we can bring about employment and regeneration in the area.

Emma Pattison: The site here at Sacriston Enterprise Workshops is going to be a place where people feel welcome and they feel comfortable and at ease and included. They can come and learn new skills, they can promote and improve their health and wellbeing, socialise and be part of their community.

Cllr Heather Liddle: The vision for the site is to restore as much as we can of the building back to how it looked when it was originally built in 1870, so it's the first approach over a number of years, and bit by bit we're doing little bits of work on it.

Emma Pattison: DCC have been amazing helping us bring this dream to life, they have provided us with the lease for the workshops, they've provided towns and villages funding, and they've listened to everything that we want to do, and they've really got on board with the whole project.
